

FRIDAY, APRIL 24, 1885.

Battala War. Mass.
From Kankakee's bay, and Obakabonka's
From Kankakee's frozen wild, Tympana's
We're marching, Alexander, with all our might
From Goshen's forest, from Techewa's
From Wasagashie's blooming fields, from
From Kankakee's villages, from Maishouche's
We're coming, Alexander, the warty rank
From polystyrene villages, we're marching early
Forchance to it, and have awed now
We're on the Rong-Morghah, and Pequichay
And we're headed by some general whose name
No tongue can speak.

From provinces and villages whose names before

Look like a heap of conscripts shovelled late

We're arabs and orkies, offis and oofs

For horf church and plotee war will die in Herat

—H. Perry in Boston Globe

Fruit Eaters Need No Doctors

We were struck recently by the remarks of a doctor friend of ours, who said healthily

we do so much to make people independent in their professional profession as the daily free use of medicines.

He has noticed that those farmers in whose families are largely and largely consumed, still and more frequently and more frequently

OUR GREAT RIVER.

Our Friends from Gathering an Arrived.

Correspondence of the Philadelphia

The moon shines brightly.

When the moon is bright,

The sun is dim.

The sun is bright,

The moon is dim.

PAULA VANE.

Story of a Plain Girl.

[CONTINUED]

"Mrs. Philipot is lying down with a headache, and I am Paula Vane," she replied. "I am the plain girl you saw in the look of her visitor. 'Mrs. Iach' how you knew my name, Mr. Churchill?"

"Perhaps I heard there had been some trouble, and expected at Esther. At any rate, it was perplexing what inspiration revealed who was my insignificant self," he replied.

Paula's answer was merely the handing over of a very excellent card of the names of the most eminent physicians in our city, and as I have no command of a friend's house, and she occupies the room of the expert's exercises, I am happy to let you know, and her services by placing them at her disposal, for my temporary master. Yours most sincerely,

—GILDED CHURCHILL.

"How extremely kind!" exclaimed the other. "How very extraordinary! What am I to do?" echoed the other.

"What can you mean? Surely you do not hate? Go and put on your habit, and, above all, you should not keep me waiting; it will do you a great deal of good."

"Frank" was the name of a sort of cap in Plympton where the evenings, or rather the nights, of Lord Templemore were too often passed.

The favor is so small, it is not worth refusing," said the girl, quickly. "They are very bad; but they are not good enough to give pleasure," explained Paula.

Oliver was struck by the extreme composure of the young artist's manner. She neither deplored nor boasted of her performances, and as long as that over he was still more astonished at her entire absence of vanity or self-conceit.

They were exceedingly well done, and the average—none higher than that of the young artist's.

Some were landscapes—others heads and figures, and evidently sketched by taste well as skill.

"Paula, you certainly have talent for drawing. Are you very fond of it?" he asked.

Paula gave a slight shrug of the shoulders. "I scarcely think I am devoted to it; but there are some things I like better."

"Indeed! what are they?" he asked, eagerly.

"Riding, I think," she replied, gravely. "And, next to that; perhaps, lawn tennis."

Oliver Churchill's brow actually contracted.

"Miss Vane, you surely do yourself injustice when you return," he returned. "I see you are taking up his hat."

"I see you are, and I dare say, I have been importunate; but I did not intend to do so."

"No, no; I did not mean that!" she said, pulling out her hand to take him back from the group, but in vain.

He had, in his day, followed the horses, and now pricked up his ears, set off at a rapid pace after the others.

Salt Air in Sick-Rooms.

In the Asylepoid Dr. Richardson showed how a sick-room may be supplied with salt air. A mixture is prepared containing 1 part of common salt, 12 per cent of sea-salt, and iodine to make a saturated solution.

Two ounces of the preparation are to be observed, and then a party of students will sit with their parvans, and each will be given a small portion of the salt air.

It is provoking that, in the wall-paint, each step rather gave the plain, saucy Paula the advantage instead of himself; but, at any rate, she was still more astonished at her entire absence of vanity or self-conceit.

They were exceedingly well done, and the average—none higher than that of the young artist's.

Some were landscapes—others heads and figures, and evidently sketched by taste well as skill.

"Paula, you certainly have talent for drawing. Are you very fond of it?" he asked.

Paula gave a slight shrug of the shoulders. "I scarcely think I am devoted to it; but there are some things I like better."

"Indeed! what are they?" he asked, eagerly.

"Riding, I think," she replied, gravely. "And, next to that; perhaps, lawn tennis."

Oliver Churchill's brow actually contracted.

"Miss Vane, you surely do yourself injustice when you return," he returned. "I see you are taking up his hat."

"I see you are, and I dare say, I have been importunate; but I did not intend to do so."

"No, no; I did not mean that!" she said, pulling out her hand to take him back from the group, but in vain.

He had, in his day, followed the horses, and now pricked up his ears, set off at a rapid pace after the others.

Salt Air in Sick-Rooms.

In the Asylepoid Dr. Richardson showed how a sick-room may be supplied with salt air. A mixture is prepared containing 1 part of common salt, 12 per cent of sea-salt, and iodine to make a saturated solution.

Two ounces of the preparation are to be observed, and then a party of students will sit with their parvans, and each will be given a small portion of the salt air.

It is provoking that, in the wall-paint, each step rather gave the plain, saucy Paula the advantage instead of himself; but, at any rate, she was still more astonished at her entire absence of vanity or self-conceit.

They were exceedingly well done, and the average—none higher than that of the young artist's.

Some were landscapes—others heads and figures, and evidently sketched by taste well as skill.

"Paula, you certainly have talent for drawing. Are you very fond of it?" he asked.

Paula gave a slight shrug of the shoulders. "I scarcely think I am devoted to it; but there are some things I like better."

"Indeed! what are they?" he asked, eagerly.

"Riding, I think," she replied, gravely. "And, next to that; perhaps, lawn tennis."

Oliver Churchill's brow actually contracted.

"Miss Vane, you surely do yourself injustice when you return," he returned. "I see you are taking up his hat."

"I see you are, and I dare say, I have been importunate; but I did not intend to do so."

"No, no; I did not mean that!" she said, pulling out her hand to take him back from the group, but in vain.

He had, in his day, followed the horses, and now pricked up his ears, set off at a rapid pace after the others.

Salt Air in Sick-Rooms.

In the Asylepoid Dr. Richardson showed how a sick-room may be supplied with salt air. A mixture is prepared containing 1 part of common salt, 12 per cent of sea-salt, and iodine to make a saturated solution.

Two ounces of the preparation are to be observed, and then a party of students will sit with their parvans, and each will be given a small portion of the salt air.

It is provoking that, in the wall-paint, each step rather gave the plain, saucy Paula the advantage instead of himself; but, at any rate, she was still more astonished at her entire absence of vanity or self-conceit.

They were exceedingly well done, and the average—none higher than that of the young artist's.

Some were landscapes—others heads and figures, and evidently sketched by taste well as skill.

"Paula, you certainly have talent for drawing. Are you very fond of it?" he asked.

Paula gave a slight shrug of the shoulders. "I scarcely think I am devoted to it; but there are some things I like better."

"Indeed! what are they?" he asked, eagerly.

"Riding, I think," she replied, gravely. "And, next to that; perhaps, lawn tennis."

Oliver Churchill's brow actually contracted.

"Miss Vane, you surely do yourself injustice when you return," he returned. "I see you are taking up his hat."

"I see you are, and I dare say, I have been importunate; but I did not intend to do so."

"No, no; I did not mean that!" she said, pulling out her hand to take him back from the group, but in vain.

He had, in his day, followed the horses, and now pricked up his ears, set off at a rapid pace after the others.

Salt Air in Sick-Rooms.

In the Asylepoid Dr. Richardson showed how a sick-room may be supplied with salt air. A mixture is prepared containing 1 part of common salt, 12 per cent of sea-salt, and iodine to make a saturated solution.

Two ounces of the preparation are to be observed, and then a party of students will sit with their parvans, and each will be given a small portion of the salt air.

It is provoking that, in the wall-paint, each step rather gave the plain, saucy Paula the advantage instead of himself; but, at any rate, she was still more astonished at her entire absence of vanity or self-conceit.

They were exceedingly well done, and the average—none higher than that of the young artist's.

Some were landscapes—others heads and figures, and evidently sketched by taste well as skill.

"Paula, you certainly have talent for drawing. Are you very fond of it?" he asked.

Paula gave a slight shrug of the shoulders. "I scarcely think I am devoted to it; but there are some things I like better."

"Indeed! what are they?" he asked, eagerly.

"Riding, I think," she replied, gravely. "And, next to that; perhaps, lawn tennis."

Oliver Churchill's brow actually contracted.

"Miss Vane, you surely do yourself injustice when you return," he returned. "I see you are taking up his hat."

"I see you are, and I dare say, I have been importunate; but I did not intend to do so."

"No, no; I did not mean that!" she said, pulling out her hand to take him back from the group, but in vain.

He had, in his day, followed the horses, and now pricked up his ears, set off at a rapid pace after the others.

Salt Air in Sick-Rooms.

In the Asylepoid Dr. Richardson showed how a sick-room may be supplied with salt air. A mixture is prepared containing 1 part of common salt, 12 per cent of sea-salt, and iodine to make a saturated solution.

Two ounces of the preparation are to be observed, and then a party of students will sit with their parvans, and each will be given a small portion of the salt air.

It is provoking that, in the wall-paint, each step rather gave the plain, saucy Paula the advantage instead of himself; but, at any rate, she was still more astonished at her entire absence of vanity or self-conceit.

They were exceedingly well done, and the average—none higher than that of the young artist's.

Some were landscapes—others heads and figures, and evidently sketched by taste well as skill.

"Paula, you certainly have talent for drawing. Are you very fond of it?" he asked.

Paula gave a slight shrug of the shoulders. "I scarcely think I am devoted to it; but there are some things I like better."

"Indeed! what are they?" he asked, eagerly.

"Riding, I think," she replied, gravely. "And, next to that; perhaps, lawn tennis."

Oliver Churchill's brow actually contracted.

"Miss Vane, you surely do yourself injustice when you return," he returned. "I see you are taking up his hat."

"I see you are, and I dare say, I have been importunate; but I did not intend to do so."

"No, no; I did not mean that!" she said, pulling out her hand to take him back from the group, but in vain.

He had, in his day, followed the horses, and now pricked up his ears, set off at a rapid pace after the others.

Salt Air in Sick-Rooms.

In the Asylepoid Dr. Richardson showed how a sick-room may be supplied with salt air. A mixture is prepared containing 1 part of common salt, 12 per cent of sea-salt, and iodine to make a saturated solution.

Two ounces of the preparation are to be observed, and then a party of students will sit with their parvans, and each will be given a small portion of the salt air.

It is provoking that, in the wall-paint, each step rather gave the plain, saucy Paula the advantage instead of himself; but, at any rate, she was still more astonished at her entire absence of vanity or self-conceit.

They were exceedingly well done, and the average—none higher than that of the young artist's.

Some were landscapes—others heads and figures, and evidently sketched by taste well as skill.

"Paula, you certainly have talent for drawing. Are you very fond of it?" he asked.

Paula gave a slight shrug of the shoulders. "I scarcely think I am devoted to it; but there are some things I like better."

"Indeed! what are they?" he asked, eagerly.

"Riding, I think," she replied, gravely. "And, next to that; perhaps, lawn tennis."

Oliver Churchill's brow actually contracted.

"Miss Vane, you surely do yourself injustice when you return," he returned. "I see you are taking up his hat."

"I see you are, and I dare say, I have been importunate; but I did not intend to do so."

"No, no; I did not mean that!" she said, pulling out her hand to take him back from the group, but in vain.

He had, in his day, followed the horses, and now pricked up his ears, set off at a rapid pace after the others.

Salt Air in Sick-Rooms.

In the Asylepoid Dr. Richardson showed how a sick-room may be supplied with salt air. A mixture is prepared containing 1 part of common salt, 12 per cent of sea-salt, and iodine to make a saturated solution.

Two ounces of the preparation are to be observed, and then a party of students will sit with their parvans, and each will be given a small portion of the salt air.

It is provoking that, in the wall-paint, each step rather gave the plain, saucy Paula the advantage instead of himself; but, at any rate, she was still more astonished at her entire absence of vanity or self-conceit.

They were exceedingly well done, and the average—none higher than that of the young artist's.

Some were landscapes—others heads and figures, and evidently sketched by taste well as skill.

"Paula, you certainly have talent for drawing. Are you very fond of it?" he asked.

Paula gave a slight shrug of the shoulders. "I scarcely think I am devoted to it; but there are some things I like better."

"Indeed! what are they?" he asked, eagerly.

"Riding, I think," she replied, gravely. "And, next to that; perhaps, lawn tennis."

Oliver Churchill's brow actually contracted.

"Miss Vane, you surely do yourself injustice when you return," he returned. "I see you are taking up his hat."

"I see you are, and I dare say, I have been importunate; but I did not intend to do so."

"No, no; I did not mean that!" she said, pulling out her hand to take him back from the group, but in vain.

He had, in his day, followed the horses, and now pricked up his ears, set off at a rapid pace after the others.

Salt Air in Sick-Rooms.

In the Asylepoid Dr. Richardson showed how a sick-room may be supplied with salt air. A mixture is prepared containing 1 part of common salt, 12 per cent of sea-salt, and iodine to make a saturated solution.

Two ounces of the preparation are to be observed, and then a party of students will sit with their parvans, and each will be given a small portion of the salt air.

It is provoking that, in the wall-paint, each step rather gave the plain, saucy Paula the advantage instead of himself; but, at any rate, she was still more astonished at her entire absence of vanity or self-conceit.

THE JOURNAL

By G. W. STRAWN.

FRIDAY, MAY 1, 1885.

Exxon, the great telephone man, was born in Broadway N. Y., last Sunday, understanding the laying of an under ground iron pipe for the reception of telephone wires, just as common as though he had never made a great discovery and become the most famous man of his day. Exxon does not raise him above the common level or above doing his own work.

Soldiers Name.

The present Legislature has made an appropriation of $150,000 for a House for the needy soldiers of our state, an institution the need of which has long been felt and which will be hailed with delight by a greatful public. Following this step no doubt a committee will be appointed to hunt up the most favorable location for the institution and will will of course take into consideration all the advantages and disadvantages of the many places that will be candidates for the location. We nominate Eaton Rapids as a place possessing more advantages for an institution of this kind than any other place can possibly mind while the borders of the state.

First, we are centrally located, being but 17 miles from the State capitol, which is claimed to be very nearly the geographical center of the state, and a shorter place of cheaper lands and cheaper living.

Second, we have the best of railroad facilities and are easy of access from all parts of the state.

Third, we have a beautiful country surrounding, where the home can be made happy, and where visitors will delight to sojourn with their comrade in battle, or companions at home.

Fourth, ours is one of the most healthful places in the state, and further, it is blessed with the best water on earth. Our mineral springs being unsurpassed as well for pure, sparkling, bright cold water as for their healing qualities, by any other water on the continent or perhaps on the entire globe.

Fifth, we have the largest Post in the state and although perhaps not the most in need of a home, would welcome such an institution and do all in their power for the comfort and happiness of its inmates. They are that kind of men.

Sixth, though not least, Eaton Rapids has been overlooked in past years in the distribution of these favors. While her natural advantages surpass most other towns in the state a reference to the tax list will reveal the fact that few localities within a radius of twenty miles equal the sum paid by the public treasury by its people, and we begin to feel that it is our turn to be noticed, at least with a considerate of our claims, nothing further.

Since putting the show in type we read from the pen of the Lansing correspondent to the Detroit Journal the following paragraph:

The joint committee to visit proposed sites for a soldiers' home and make recommendations concerning them will leave Lansing Thursday evening. The committee consists of Mr. C. H. Miller, Mr. A. M. and Francis, and Mr. Hepburn Northwood, Ford and Howell. They will spend Saturday here Friday, and spend Saturday here Friday, and return to the latter part of the week visit the eastern portion of the state. Notices of time and place will be sent to places which are interested. A list will be made to the sites to which the attention of the committee is called. Among them are the parks of Grand Rapids; Port Huron, Lona, Hillsdale, Eaton Rapids, Charlevoix, Muskegon, Big Rapids, Seward County, etc.

Steps should be taken at once to have this committee visit Eaton Rapids. Who will move in the matter?

Will suit the Grangers.

The "middle man" has been to a great extent the theme of conversation among Grangers, in fact he is responsible for the origin of the association and to put him out of sight is their principal object. Many look upon him as a necessary evil, while the Granger appears to choose the evil and let the necessity go. The J. C. Z., correspondent to the Detroit Free Press, in last Sunday's issue has this to say in reference to Middlemen at the great Emporium where the child was concealed and whose funeral dirge is just now being sung.

In talk with a wholesale dry goods man the other day it was told that the goods trade in this line is fast dying out. He said a long line of jobbing houses which have been in business in a few years, and said that with the exception of a dozen large concerns, all will go to pieces in a few years more. The importers in the same line of business houses are rapidly absorbing the bulk of the trade.

The jobbers has always been merely a middleman buying from the importers and the consumers from him, and selling to the retailers at a great profit. The importers and commission men would not buy from him, consequently none of the middlemen in this line of business are left.

But what is the case with the Grangers? All the importers and agents now sell small quantities as well as large ones. The importers can save the profit of the middleman and the jobbers.

The new departure began about eight years ago, and it has gradually spread until now runs through the whole trade. In a few years more, it is said, there will be no place for jobbers in New York. Whether the elimination of the middleman will be an actual advantage or not, is too long to tell.

It is thought that China, instead of the metropolis will have him in check. He may be useful there for a time to come, but his usefulness here belongs to the past. But the guy and general manager will still be to the fore. His name is John Wilson, and he is a right good fellow. The new dry goods trade in New York was won up at one fell swoop.

One does not have any care about the future, for the score is that he couldn't kill us.

Mr. Webster of the Reporters.

After Henry Ward Beecher had submitted to an interview, in which he admitted to Mr. Cleveland's attitude towards the slaves, and predicted that he would do well if the people would want him four years more, the reporter said: "There, you have got all you want. When a man isn't satisfied with how they are, he's got to go and see Beecher." When I asked him, "What I mean," he said, "I should raise a monument to him, for he was a politician I would be very proud to have as a plain citizen I talk freely, without regard to what other folks think."

As much as to say, this is my own private opinion publicly expressed.

A team of horses were stolen Wednesday night from the barn on Mr. Deering's farm in Sebewaing, one of which belonged to the Deering and the other to D. Markham, the tenant who has not yet received his rent and a reward is offered for their return.

We guarantee the quality of our Liquid Paints to be superior to all others, and we will repaint, free of cost any building painted with them where they do not prove more durable than White Lead and Oil, put on in the ordinary way.

We guarantee our Liquid Paint to contain no adulteration, and not to blister, crack, peel or chalk off, when used according to directions.

DETROIT WHITE LEAD WORKS.

F. Z. HAMILTON.

WATSON'S WAR!

100 bushes of charcoal at the hardware store of W. J. MUNGER.

Wanted.

100 bushes of charcoal at the hardware store of W. J. MUNGER.

Fancy Sutlings.

I have just received a fine line of fancy muslin and lace paintings, all imported goods. Also a wide line of trinkets and French wares, which will be made up in latest styles. Everything warranted, or money refunded.

144 — J. BLACKER.

Notice.

Not too deaf to duty, but have not gone west, but will hold the Rheat livery barn, and a number of horses for sale. Mrs. M. L. Deering, 100 acres land, 2,000 ft. of railway, 2,000 ft. schoolhouses and 275 acres of land, or more per acre, than any New England state except Massachusetts.

The Territory of Dakota pays more revenue to the Postoffice Department than any other State of the Union, and has a population of 1,000,000.

The South American Commission was well received at Caracas, the capital of Venezuela. The result of the inquiry was similar to that received at New York, namely, that America should not be allowed more care in preparing to meet the Venezuela markets, and should not interfere with the foreign trade.

Four, ours is one of the most healthful places in the state, and further, it is blessed with the best water on earth. Our mineral springs being unsurpassed as well for pure, sparkling, bright cold water as for their healing qualities, by any other water on the continent or perhaps on the entire globe.

Fifth, we have the largest Post in the state and although perhaps not the most in need of a home, would welcome such an institution and do all in their power for the comfort and happiness of its inmates. They are that kind of men.

Sixth, though not least, Eaton Rapids has been overlooked in past years in the distribution of these favors. While her natural advantages surpass most other towns in the state a reference to the tax list will reveal the fact that few localities within a radius of twenty miles equal the sum paid by the public treasury by its people, and we begin to feel that it is our turn to be noticed, at least with a considerate of our claims, nothing further.

Since putting the show in type we read from the pen of the Lansing correspondent to the Detroit Journal the following paragraph:

The joint committee to visit proposed sites for a soldiers' home and make recommendations concerning them will leave Lansing Thursday evening. The committee consists of Mr. C. H. Miller, Mr. A. M. and Francis, and Mr. Hepburn Northwood, Ford and Howell. They will spend Saturday here Friday, and spend Saturday here Friday, and return to the latter part of the week visit the eastern portion of the state. Notices of time and place will be sent to places which are interested. A list will be made to the sites to which the attention of the committee is called. Among them are the parks of Grand Rapids; Port Huron, Lona, Hillsdale, Eaton Rapids, Charlevoix, Muskegon, Big Rapids, Seward County, etc.

Steps should be taken at once to have this committee visit Eaton Rapids. Who will move in the matter?

Will suit the Grangers.

The "middle man" has been to a great extent the theme of conversation among Grangers, in fact he is responsible for the origin of the association and to put him out of sight is their principal object. Many look upon him as a necessary evil, while the Granger appears to choose the evil and let the necessity go. The J. C. Z., correspondent to the Detroit Free Press, in last Sunday's issue has this to say in reference to Middlemen at the great Emporium where the child was concealed and whose funeral dirge is just now being sung.

In talk with a wholesale dry goods man the other day it was told that the goods trade in this line is fast dying out. He said a long line of jobbing houses which have been in business in a few years, and said that with the exception of a dozen large concerns, all will go to pieces in a few years more. The importers in the same line of business houses are rapidly absorbing the bulk of the trade.

The jobbers has always been merely a middleman buying from the importers and the consumers from him, and selling to the retailers at a great profit. The importers and commission men would not buy from him, consequently none of the middlemen in this line of business are left.

But what is the case with the Grangers? All the importers and agents now sell small quantities as well as large ones. The importers can save the profit of the middleman and the jobbers.

The new departure began about eight years ago, and it has gradually spread until now runs through the whole trade. In a few years more, it is said, there will be no place for jobbers in New York. Whether the elimination of the middleman will be an actual advantage or not, is too long to tell.

It is thought that China, instead of the metropolis will have him in check. He may be useful there for a time to come, but his usefulness here belongs to the past. But the guy and gen-

I AM NOT TO PAINTER'S PAINTING

and all other colors

Wanted.

10,000 feet 1 1/2 and 2 inch Buttermut

Lumber at the Eaton Rapids Factory.

Eaton Rapids Mich.

New stock of Frames and Moldings

17w2

Farm For Sale.

20 acres all improved with new comfortable house, good well, good orchard.

Price $500 per acre. Located

1 1/2 miles south on "New Clinton" road.

Call for details.

Wilcox & Toles.

16w3

CUSTOMERS

SHALL HAVE

THE BENEFIT

OF THE

Special Bargains

IN THIS LINE.

WILCOX & TOLES.

16w3

Wells! Wells!

Having moved into the city and purchased a well built house, we are prepared to put down trees at a reasonable rate, either for cash or for paper.

If you need a tree cut, we will do it at a low price.

Overmyer & Lease.

17w3

SKIRMISHING

Are sowed Broadcast over the nation because they

SELL the CHEAPEST.

We have a full line of Fresh Garden Seeds,

WISCONSIN BLUE FIELD PEAS,

Canada Peas,

Millet,

Hungarian Orchard Grass, Red Top, Etc.

—A full line of—

FRESH GROCERIES

Constantly on hand. Crsh paid for Butter and Eggs.

W. M. TOLES & SON.

Save money by buying

Garden - Seeds

IN THE BULK.

I have just received a large stoc of all the staple variety from the gardens of

D. M. FERRY & CO.

Down! Down!

Cabinet Photos for the next 60 days for $3

a dozen, 1/2 doz. $2

CARDS AT $2 per doz.

—An immense new

SPRING STOCK

—OF

BOOTS and SHOES,

Suited to the wants of every man and woman and child in the country.

The Widest Range for Selection.

The Very Latest Styles,

The Most Reliable Goods,

—By Far.

For Sale.

Royal Horse, six years old, sound, kind,

well broken and ready good traveler.

Address at this office.

17w2

Lowest Prices.

These are facts. Our goods and prices prove them.

Best Cuts of Meat at 12c,

And Belling Pieces as 6c.

Bacon, Pork, Veal, Mutton, every

