Obituary of French Life

A few steps will bring us to the main street of the city...

There comes a funeral procession, every man on the street takes off his hat...

What a multitude of people in the procession...

Should you see a gentleman on the street, you may know that the gentleman is father, husband or son...

The widow very often continues to carry on the husband's business after death...

One thing strikes an American in making purchases in France...

The report of the treasurer was read and it showed that there had been about fifty-five cents overdrawn...

The Ladies' Society has a balance in the treasury of $900.00...
