Come Set a Bit...

Dear Mr. Editor:

In your "Letters to the Editor" column today you can see where ole Uncle Joe is being taken severely to task for advocating the spending of less money, particularly for pointing the finger at the Extension service as just one of the things on which we might spend less.

At first reading I was inclined to say that the gentleman was absolutely right, the Extension service does do a lot of good, at the expense of all of us, of course.

On second thought, with all the furore about the lack of family unity these days, about fathers and mothers not doing things with their children, is it so good that such agencies are pulling our young people out of their homes? Wouldn't it be far better if more would teach Janie how to sew and cook and pop would show Junior the ins and outs of modern farming? What their parents don't know they can certainly get in their ag and sewing classes in school.

On the other hand, if some folks are going to insist that there just isn't anything to compare with what rural families get out of Extension, how about looking at the other side of the coin?

Does anyone believe for a minute that the downtown business men know all there is to know about merchandising and many other facets of their business? How about hiring a business extension service to assist our small town merchants and businessmen with all the problems that beset them? Would the rural people be willing to underwrite the tax burden to help their city cousins? And how about educating the sons and daughters of these men in the maze of paper work, taxes, and proper methods so they'll be ready to take over the business when the old man's had his heart attack?

Farming is a business, selling clothes or groceries or shoes are also businesses. Nobody's gettin' rich — Uncle Sam takes care of that with taxes.

Now if rural folks are willing that as much money per capita can be spent on other folks as is being spent on them for services, then nobody's got a gripe — leastways not until the taxes get so high that all farmers are living on government owned collective farms and all city folks are slaving in government owned factories and stores.

Uncle Joe

Farming Miracle

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Here is a discussion of the "farm problem" from a little different viewpoint — that of the farmer himself. Written by Herbert VanAken, it appeared originally in the latest bulletin of the Thornapple-Grand Soil Conservation district.)

Hold up your head Mr. Farmer. Be proud of your business. Don't walk down the back street like a dog that has been punished, because newspapers and magazines have seen fit to criticize or deride farmers and agricultural programs. You are the most efficient producers in the world. No other business in the United States or the rest of the world has increased the efficiency of their production as has the American Farmer. Only a few short years ago one farmer fed 4 city people, that ratio is changed now to 1 farmer feeds 20 city people. Tomorrow it will be 1 farmer feeds 24 people.

Don't be depressed and despair because of surplus food. Better to have it than starvation and undernourishment as have India, China, and many others. There it takes 3 farmers to half feed himself and one other worker. Why fear criticism because of so called farm subsidy? Most other businesses accept government aid in some form or other. What agriculture receives is a small part of the total. Really it has subsidized the consumer because the average worker today can buy a unit of food for not much over 1/2 the working time it took 10 years ago.

Support the agencies that work with us and who helped to make this progress possible. Research, education, information and technical services along with improved machinery have helped to make this agricultural miracle possible. Many have been released from agriculture to go into industry to make autos, television, radio and all the wonderful modern gadgets and machines to make life so happy and comfortable for all of us. This could never have taken place without this revolution in agriculture. God grant that some day people of this mighty land may understand these things and give proper credit to those men and institutions who so richly deserve it.

We are a declining number in the business of agriculture, but as the ratio of farmers has declined, more and more people have become involved in the servicing of farmers or the handling of their products. 12% of our people are farmers but 37% of our total labor force work in the whole army of agriculture. It is the greatest business segment of our country. We do not need to take a back seat in anything. We are important. Agriculture is the one business in which Russia frankly acknowledges our superiority. She only hopes through studying and copying our methods to some time more nearly approach our production. Again I say to you, lift up your heads and square your shoulders. Be proud to be a farmer. Tell your boys and girls, your neighbors and your friends the story.

Letters to the Editor

To: The Editor of the Eaton Rapids Journal.

There is a saying that it takes all kinds of people to make a world. We have had drug store cowboys, arm chair generals, folks who were going to have the world come to an end, folks who never changed a baby's pants tell us how to raise our family, and now something new has been added; an Uncle Joe?

Tell Uncle Joe I have been a farmer for forty years and I resent his attack and remarks about our extension service. These are changing times for farmers and we need the extension service more than ever. The following is a partial list of the service that they have to offer: Home-making for better living, 4-H youth program, farm business planning, farm business accounts, and live stock programs.

Among the latest services are soil management, soil testing and fertilizer recommendations, D. H. I. A. production testing, and many more. Now Uncle, the last week in August the Eaton County 4-H Fair is held in Charlotte. Take the day off and go through the 4-H building and see what 4-Hers are doing. You will find handicraft, dress making, baking, canning, and samples of almost every kind of vegetables and crops grown on our farms. Then go through the sheds and barns and you will see everything from hantam chicks and rabbits to beef cows and horses... just as fine a display of animals as found in Michigan, and all the work of 4-Hers from 10 to 20 years old.

Fishermen and women, equipped with dip nets, dish pans, wash tubs and lanterns will soon be making their once-a-year mass migration to many of Michigan's streams and rivers. Cause for the excitement are the annual small runs which normally reach their peak during the frosty nights of late March or early April. In 1958 the commercial small catch was more than 5,000,000 pounds. The season runs from March 1 to May 31 in waters designated by the Department.

"That will be the day." Editor, I don't usually put much credence in rumors, but since you do, here is one in which you may be interested. It is rumored that quite a few of the people in the Pray, Skinner and Hinckley school districts that voted to go to Eaton Rapids because they thought it would be cheaper are busy looking at boundary lines to see if they are contiguous to the Dimondale School district since your citizens committee has come out with that 2 1/2 million dollar building plan. These economical citizens have suddenly realized that once the bond is passed, they are stuck until it is paid off, even if it takes 30 years. Now, this is just a rumor so take it for what it is worth. Sincerely, Aloha Fritts, Secretary, Bd. of Ed. USE JOURNAL LINERS

Doc Didn't Pull His Punch

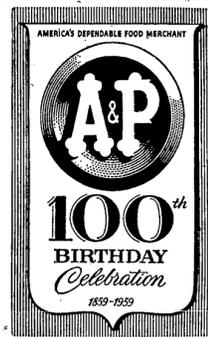

The other day Doc Williams got worse with neglect. That's why we should never ignore "intolerance" in any form. Sometimes it crops up in little things like begrudging a man his right to a glass of beer, or telling him what kind of television programs he should watch. Let's all respect our neighbor's preferences and opinions. That way we won't "pull" at each other's freedom.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Carstens,
I see it is time for me to renew my subscription to the paper, so enclosed is a check for $4.00 for another year. I have especially enjoyed the paper this winter, for the descriptions and photos of the ice and snow.
Edna Smith's letters have been so interesting, and having been so many of the places she wrote about myself, I could almost imagine I was taking the trip with them. I must confess that her letter about Phoenix, Arizona made me very homesick.

Joe and the girls go shelling nearly every week-end, and the past month two typhoons weather here. Rain, wind, and heat. The temperature ranges from 80 to 86 degrees and the humidity from 86 to 96%. Within the past month two typhoons, "Ruby" and "Sally," have passed within 300 miles of us. It is very noticeable when they are that close as the winds are even higher than usual. I, for one, will be happy if they stay that far away as I don't care for wind. Guam is in the typhoon belt tho', so every one has to always be prepared, with at least a three-day supply of canned foods and other necessities.

We moved into Navy housing in January and like it very much. Our rent is about the same as Stateside, but the Navy does very well by us. We have five large bedrooms and a bathroom. Very nicely furnished, with rattan furniture, and they even provide a freezer. The area where we live is on top of alarge hill with a lovely view of both the mountains and the ocean. We can look down on Apra harbor, where all the ships come in. A couple weeks ago it looked as tho' the ships were being towed out of the harbor. Marine ships, five destroyers, and one M.S.T. troop and passenger ship, all in at the same time.

We live on the Naval station, which is the largest of the three Naval bases on the island. It is 17 miles from the Naval air station where Joe works and is 12 miles from the girls' schools. These distances don't sound like much, but with the 25 mph. speed limit, it takes 18 hours a day, and special programs such as the Presidents games and the Rose Bowl game, we get direct by short wave.

I received the E. R. paper of March 4th yesterday, and see that things are warming up a little there. I know every one will be glad to put the old snow shovel away for another year.

Will close, with best wishes to you, and to all my friends in Eaton Rapids. If a letter of them see this, I hope it will remind them that they owe me a letter.

Sincerely
Donna Kretz

Dear Art:
I think perhaps your readers may be interested in my recent experience at Gremelin Corners. Many in our community may not be cognizant of the wonderful opportunities that Gremelin Corners affords the youth of our community. Two weeks ago Charlie Fickham asked me if I would chaperone for that particular Saturday. I consented mainly because I wanted an insight into the social activities of the teenagers. From the opening of the doors at 7:30 P.M. until their closing at 11:30, I was very much pleased with the manners and courtesies displayed by the young men and women present.

It should be rewarding to the Community Activities Council to see this fine program being offered largely through their efforts, and they are to be congratulated for making Gremelin Corners the place that it has become. Among the recreational activities available are ping-pong, table tennis, playing pool, reading, and dancing to the current top recordings. Gremelin Corners also houses a canteen where refreshments may be purchased very inexpensively.

May I say to the people of our community that if they haven't visited Gremelin Corners, it would be a very enlightening experience.

The community of Eaton Rapids should be extremely proud of its youth center, Gremelin Corners, and the young people who pass many hours there.

Sincerely,
Frank Bonta

GETTING THE MOST... FROM YOUR GARDEN

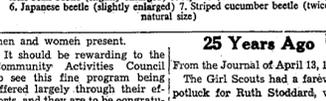

By Lyman N. White
ASSOCIATED SEED GROWERS

Outdoors in the summer, insects are everywhere—millions of them, high and low in the air over your garden, others on or below the ground and on your plants. Some insects help our plants, carrying pollen from plant to plant while gathering their food, eating other harmful insects, or improving the soil by their operations in it. Others harm our plants, so we seek to control or destroy them. For this effectively, we should know something about them.

Most insects lay eggs, though aphids, or plant lice, are born ready for action. From the eggs may come larvae, otherwise known as grubs, maggots, caterpillars, or worms. A larva feeds greedily, then changes into a pupa, which lies low until it emerges as a butterfly, beetle, fly, or a moth. Some, like the Mexican bean beetle, skip one stage, and some, like grasshoppers, come from the egg as a small form of the adult.

Some larvae live underground, where they feed on roots. Others are the white grubs so often found at dusk and may be readily knocked into a jar half filled with dead grass in a lawn may be caused by Japanese beetle grubs at work in the soil. Young larvae may be seen in the soil and may be readily killed and die when the cabbage maggot, which is a gray fly, emerges from eggs laid on the soil and goes down to the roots. They also invade radish roots in early spring. To protect cabbage, broccoli, or cauliflower plants, apply chloroform dust to roots when transplanting. Chloroform will also control cutworms which gnaw at the stems of young plants. Apply against cut worms which chew the stems of young plants. Apply to soil surrounding plants.

The white cabbage butterfly lays its eggs on the underside of leaves, which become green cabbage worms and eat the leaves. Malnutrition dust.

A&P Celebrating Its 100th Anniversary This Year

The nation's oldest chain retailer, the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., known to most Americans as A & P, is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year.

Theme of the company's year-long celebration of the historical milestone is "Thanks, America," according to Clyde L. Taylor of Grand Rapids. A & P general superintendent in this area.

"We are indebted to our customers, whose patronage through the years has built our business," said Taylor, "and we are placing major emphasis this year on a series of merchandising events which offer tangible evidence of our appreciation.

In launching the anniversary year, the A & P president and board chairman, Ralph W. Burger, challenged the company's 145,000 employees to seek new and better ways to serve the customer. "In the highly competitive business in which we are engaged," he told them, "there is no standing still. We must continue to develop, to adapt, to change, to find the new way which is better than the present."

A & P has grown to seven divisions with more than 4,000 stores in a century of service to generations of housewives.

Stores in Eaton Rapids and this area are under the overall direction of President Frank H. Bucher of the Central Western Division with headquarters in Detroit.

President Bucher, tracing the Division's growth in a territory stretching from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. to Memphis, Tenn., said the company had adhered to basic principles of efficient, low-cost distribution and to the founder's philosophy: "Always do what is honest, sincere and in the best interest of our customers."

"To carry out that original policy," President Bucher said, "we consistently have made every effort to hold our operating cost to a minimum and to utilize every possible efficiency that will result in better quality at lower prices for the many families who depend on A & P for their daily food needs."

Bucher said a second factor in pushing A & P to the forefront is the fact that the company never has ceased to meet the challenge of changing times and the changing needs of customers.

The year of A & P's founding, 1859, was marked by many significant developments in American history. John Brown raided Harper's Ferry as the storm clouds of Civil War gathered. Col. Edwin Drake drilled the first oil well at Titusville, Pa., clearing the way for the Motor Age. The Comstock Lode was uncovered in Nevada and the first hotel passenger elevator in the country was installed in New York's Fifth Avenue Hotel.

A & P began in that year with a man, an idea and a shipload of tea. The man was George H. Hartford, 26, who had left his home in Augusta, Me. and had worked briefly in St. Louis before heading East again to New York City. His idea was to sell good tea, then the favorite national beverage, to New Yorkers about a third of the retail price by buying an entire clipper shipload and selling it directly to the public, thus eliminating many in-between steps and costs.

So successful was his venture in selling the first shipload at dockside that he immediately opened his first store at 31 Vesey St. in New York City.

"Of all the events that happened in 1859, opening of the little tea store was certainly one of the most significant because it was destined to have a profound effect on the lives of generations of Americans. It meant the establishment of a new concept of efficiency, low-cost mass distribution that led to the development of many other great chains — food, drug, variety stores and general merchandise.

By 1880, when the bustle was a standard accessory of feminine attire and horses pulled street cars, there were 95 A & P stores, and as the thriving community rebuilt itself, the A & P stayed to open more retail outlets.

By 1890, when the bustle was a standard accessory of feminine attire and horses pulled street cars, there were 95 A & P stores, and as the thriving community rebuilt itself, the A & P stayed to open more retail outlets.

The cost-cutting philosophy of the Vesey Street store was so successful that Mr. Hartford soon spread his activities beyond its confines.

Advertisements began appearing in national magazines such as Harper's Weekly announcing the fantastic tea values available by mail order from New York; "tea clubs" were being organized in cities up and down the coast.

Ten years after it opened its first store, the original Vesey Street store had been outgrown and supplanted by a larger location next door, coffee had been added to the line a few years later, it would be christened Eight O'Clock, and Wells Fargo wagons were delivering the company's brands throughout the land.

Within a short time after 1869 there were "retail branch houses" in Boston and Philadelphia, and by the beginning of the 1870's, A & P stores were springing up in major cities along the eastern seaboard.

It was a national tragedy, the Chicago fire of 1871, that first took the company into the heart of the Midwest. The nation mobilized its resources to come to the aid of the ruined city, and relief supplies began to rumble in the going price.

"This venture headed the beginning of A & P's manufacturing operation and subsequently the food-tasting laboratories designed to see that each item sold in A & P stores meets the company's high quality standards.

In 1888 a second son, John, joined his brother and father in the business and rounded out the triumvirate that was to lead the company in its formative years. Mr. John, who was younger than George, was a five-dollar-a-week clerk in the main store in downtown New York. But it was not long before he was working closely with his father and brother in broadening the company's line and in peppering the map with more and more red-and-gold-fronted stores.

That was the year when George L. Hartford, 15, oldest son of the founder came to work for the company. Young "Mr. George" became as the chief cashier of the New York store, and for some years his most time-consuming task was the counting, bill by bill, of the chain's daily cash income.

But Mr. George had more on his mind than just keeping track of what came in. From the beginning he gave minute attention to the mechanics of the purchasing and retailing operation, and it was not long before this attention resulted in what, in retrospect, was an historic decision for the company.

It was in the 1880's the youngest son happened to mention to a chemist friend that baking powder must consist of extremely expensive ingredients since its price was so high. "Not at all," answered the friend, "it's just alum and bicarbonate of soda." Shortly thereafter the back section of the company's main New York store was transformed, and a chemist was put to work making baking powder, which the company put out under its own name and sold at a fraction of Students were invited to take part in the discussion and voting.

Some topics discussed were the coming class elections, the junior member-at-large election and a school code of dress.

The Living Word

"I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." John 8:12

People today are seeking comfort or assurance, a soothing balm for troubles, peace for guilt-ridden souls, a clear vision in the midst of confusion, a sure hope in a day when the future looks vacant.

To answer all of this need, there is Jesus. Everpresent. He stands at the door knocking. But the clatter of conflicting doctrines muffle His rap. Or one rises to give Him admission, but friends and family want to play. "Do not leave your toys behind." But the door cannot be opened as long as the heart is clogged with any other love. Then, too, we realize that we must humble ourselves and confess that we are helpless sinners against God. And this is positively shocking. And in addition, to drop our playthings, our gadgets, and amusements, (yes, all of them) is asking the impossible.

So why to obtain release without paying the full price of discipleship must be found. Self-justification helps a little; church membership also assuages some of the pain; kind deeds may be substituted for repentance and restitution. But time is mercilessly revealing; the froth of the imitation salvation blows away and we sit exposed to the same predicament. Again we might hear Jesus knock, and this time we know that we have too much to give up to truly let Him in, so we live with anxiety, troubles, vacancy, and confusion.

TO YOUR HEALTH!

This is much more than a popular toast to your pharmacist. Like your physician, he is dedicated to a single major cause—to keep you well and healthy.

The "ounce of prevention" adage is all important in preventive medicine. Annual physical examinations and prompt diagnosis of illness enable your doctor to save you precious time and money.

More and more people recognize the wisdom of regular medical checkups. It is the best way to put that "ounce of prevention" to practical use. If a prescription is necessary, we are prepared to give you immediate service.

SMART "TEENS"

know that thrift is just as important today as it was when their parents were young. They may not be concerned now with saving for a "rainy day", but they realize that saving now is the best start toward the things they want in the years ahead — a college education, car, or, eventually, a business or home of their own.

Many Smart Teens already have savings accounts here, and we particularly enjoy helping them with their banking problems.

INSIDE EATON

Your County Extension Agent, 4-H
Talent Try-Outs April 14 and 18
Eaton county 4-H club members interested in participating in this year's "Share the Fun" Festival must attend a talent try-out program, 8 p.m., either April 14 or 18 at the 4-H club building on the fairgrounds in Charlotte. Entry blanks have been mailed to all 4-H leaders so 4-H members should contact their local leader if they are interested in entering the talent try-outs next week.

SMART "TEENS"

know that thrift is just as important today as it was when their parents were young. They may not be concerned now with saving for a "rainy day", but they realize that saving now is the best start toward the things they want in the years ahead — a college education, car, or, eventually, a business or home of their own.

"ATTENTION ALL FARMERS"

There will be a growers meeting for all growers interested in growing pickles at the Grange Hall in Eaton Rapids, Mich. Tuesday April 22nd, at 8:00 p.m. Dr. John Carow from Mich. State University will discuss culture practices. Our county agricultural agents will cover aspects of plants, fertilizers, etc. Dr. Peterson will talk on varieties of seeds. Slide pictures will be shown of various fields. Dr. Howard Potter will discuss disease. Mr. Ira Strawn from the U. S. Dept. of Labor will discuss labor for harvesting, housing, etc. Any farmer growing who can work this crop into his program. Coffee and sandwiches will be served after the meeting and there will be jars of pickles to take home. This meeting is sponsored by Brine Stock Inc. and Brine Stock Growers Association. 14-15c

THE LATEST IN HAIR STYLES! This is the rear view of the hair style adopted by unmarried Rwanda girls in South Africa. The somewhat "evanescent" treatment is truly a badge of freedom. Once the girls have married, their lives become a dreary round of toil and child-bearing. Much of the heavy work in house or field is done by the women while husbands relax or hunt. The girls pictured here, however, will probably not endure such drudgery for they are Seventh-day Adventist missionaries who will probably marry Christian husbands.
